> In " The Cave of the Winds," (t'ader the Palls of Nisgara.)

'Mid the din of the falling water
With the wind confusedly blending
There's room to stand on the slippery stone
(And but room for a man to stand alone)
And hark to the booming sullen tone
Of the occar of waters descending—

The flood of Niagara's river
From the risks above you is leaping—
In the vigor of life, yet so close to death
That you almost unconsciously hold your breath
As you gaze on the turbulent waters beneath While the torrent around you is sweeping. Perchance if you stand there a while

With the spray all over you dashing
You may, like me, very possibly find in the place they call." The Cave of the Wind," Strange thoughts will suddenly come to your mind,
Like the light on the waters flashing. You may think of the life that is past, And of that which is speedily going.
And fancy how like the stream of life
With it s constant hurry and bustle and strife,
Where good is so scarce and evi so rife,
Is the torrent o 'er you flowing.

Far away on the sparkling stream How the sunlight delights to quiver, As it ripp les along from its far off source, And, ever pursuing its downward course,

It gathers ever and ever the force That swells to a noble river! How like one's childhood's life,
With the bright swift passing pleasures
That linger with our young lives a while,
As ittle by little we're losing the smile
That's the brightest of childhood's treasures!

One thinks of the widening river, One thinks of the widening river,
As it rolls by the shady wildows;
With stately, slow, and majestic sweep
It nears each hour that awful leap
That must be passed ere it gains the deep
To rest in the ocean's billows.

Thus passes our life away,
And so the end we hasten;
At best we but hold a lease of breath,
And, either as a friend or foe, king Death
Hath spoken—"Prepare for the end," he saith;
"Tis late now our lives to cha sten. Too late! In the whirling stream

Of life, like the waters railing, We are dashed like an atom of tiny weight On the rocks; yet may it not be too late To feel that while we but meet our fate We meet with nothing appdling.

Far away in the depths below
On a more the waters are blending;
The rocks are past, no more to dread;
Let's live so that, when this body be dead,
Of us all (when gone) it may truly be said,
"He lives in the life never-ending."

A Cool Detective.

As a rule, highwaymen in the mining States seldom operate upon a stage-coach with "U.S.M." on it. They know that these initials stand for the United States Mail, and are a pledge that the whole power of the Government will be used to capture them.

The detectives in the Government service are quiet men, courteons in manner and gentle in speech. Mr. Hayes tells, in his book on "New Colorado," of one whom he met, whe wore gold spectacles, and looked like a German professor. Yet this man alone took two mail robbers from the North to Texas. At one place their friends planned a rescue. He quietly informed his friends that, while their friends could undoubtedly kill him, they might be sure that the first motion would send both of them into eternity. Not a man in the crowd moved a finger.

On one occasion, a celebrated detective was on a stage which was attacked by two masked men. The first he knew was that two revolvers were thrust in the coach's windows, with the command, "Hands up, gentlemen !

The highwaymen "had the drop" on the passengers, which, in their vocabulary, meant the certainty of their being able to kill before being harmed themselves. To his disgust, the detective was compelled to give up his watch and money.

As the robbers left, he put his hand down in the "boot," and to his delight it touched a carbine. Asking the driver to go on a little farther, and then stop and wait for him, he went back alone.

The two men, unsuspicious of danger were "divvying up" the spoils in the middle of the road. This was just what the detective had calculated on.

"Now, you scoundrels, it's my turnr. he shouted, covering them by the repeat' ing carbine. "Throw up your hands, o-I'll shoot."

The robbers, at his command, stepped one side, holding up their hands, while he picked up their revolvers. It was not many minutes before the astonished passengers saw the two highwaymen meekly walking down the road, with the cool detective following. They were taken in the coach and finally lodged in goal.

The hero was General Charles Adams who subsequently went alone among the Utes and secured the release of the women captives from the White River Agency .- American Paper.

Snaring an Alligator. A correspondent, who has been fishing in the Florida waters, tells in Forest and Stream of his adventure in snaring an alligator. "We procured," he says, "a strong seven-eighths manilla rope, 40ft. long, a small haiter chain (twisted links), 8ft. long, and a piece of well-seasoned hickory. The latter we cut to a length of Sin., leaving the diameter 1 in., and we sharpened each end. At the centre we girded it with a lin. groove, leaving the diameter still lin. The stick of wood we securely fastened to the link. To the other end of the chain our rope was fastened. Our suare now had the appearance of a cap T with the upright stroke very much elongated. We now procured a 10th, chunk of beef, into which we securely fastened the piece of hickory, and then, bringing one end of the stick parallel with the chain, we fastened it there with a bit of yarn. Repairing to the 'reserve' we selected a spot, secured our rope to a pine tree growing near its edge, and then by the aid of a canoe we carried the bait out as far as the rope would permit. To ensure the floating of the bait near the surface of the water, we laid the rope across a 5ft. strip of plank. Everything completed, we retired to await developments. Early next moraing we were at the reserve, and there, sure enough, we had a 'gator fast, and judging from the muddy condition of the water, he was a whopper, and had been there some time. The rope was moving through the water in quite a rapid manner, and without unfastening it we made a pull with all our strength, but we might as well have tried to lift an elephant by the tail. After much talk it was suggested and agreed to that we make use of a small wagon and a pair of mules belonging to the party. I went for the team, and in my haste did not take time to put the body on the wagon, it having been removed for the purpose of hading wood. Hastily throwing a plank across the bolsters, I scated myself and drove over to where the party awaited me.

SATURDAY PRESS.

VOLUME I.

The rope had been secured by a slip-low, without passing it around the tree, so we had only to fasten the loose end to the hind axle and drive away, and thus slip the knot and make a direct pull on the 'gator.

After securely fastening this rope to the axle, I seated myself on the plank, and gave the mules the slack. The mules were young, fiery, and hardly broken to harness, and had repeatedly run away, endangering our lives on more than one occasion; but we had not thought of this in our excite-team, there was a strain on the rope, and then out came the hoge monster, covered with mud, and lashing the water into foam with his tail, the noise he made resembling to some extent the beatings of a huge propeller. The mules both looked around :

and as they did so the monster gave a roar that made the very earth tremble. The broken heart. The mules left the road,- and then he would rap against a tree, but serious fears for a while that, in his anxiety to go shead, he might put a head on me;

however, we reached home at last, and the mules, completely winded, stopped of their own accord. When we came to sum up, we found all the 'run' taken out of the LATEST FOREIGN NEWS.

The arrival of the "Detached Squadron" is nxiously expected in the Colony, and a most oyal reception is to be given to the two princes.

Sr. Perensuung, May 12th .- Serious riots, arising out of the strong anti-Jewish feeling, have oc-curred at several towns in southern Russia. Con-flicts have in some instances been most severe, and attended with bloodshed.

Sr. Petersaumo, May 12th.-The Czar has issued

Panis, May 13th.—Telegrams have been received from Tunis announcing that the settlement of the Franco-Tunisian difficulty has been brought about. On the arrival of the French troops outside the city of Tunis, the Bey despatched envoys to nego tiate with the French commander. The latter de manded as an ultimatum that the Bey should give a substantial guarantee that perfect order would be maintained on the frontier, and that he should agree to receive a French resident at the apital. These conditions were ultimately accepted, and were embodied in a treaty of peace, which has since been signed, between the French commander and the envoys of the Bey. In conse-quence of the settlement arrived at, the French troops will not now enter the city.

London, May 13th—1t has transpired that the treaty which was signed yesterday by the Bey of Tunis and the commander of the French troops in that country will virtually annul the autonomy of the Tunisian State, and reduce the Bey to the position of a vassal of France. By the terms of the treaty the Bey has agreed to place the complete control of the finances of his kingdom in the control of the handees of his singuous in the hands of the Commissioners appointed by the French Government, and to accept the dictation of France with regard to his foreign policy and re-lations. The right of despatching roops to any part of Tunisian territory was also secured to France by the compact.

ROME, May 13th.-The news of the surrender of the Rey of Tunis and the terms of the treaty which has been agreed to by him has caused great excitement throughout Italy. Indignation is freely expressed at the action of France. It is expected that diplomatic representations will at once be made to the French Government with regard to the position of the Bey, as the autonomy of the Tunisian people is affected by the treaty.

ROME, May 13th .- There is a division of opinion in the Ministry as to the action which should be taken by Italy in view of the French position in Tunis. Several meetings of the Cabinet have been held, but no understanding could be arrived at, and Liberal members of the Ministry have in consequence tendered their resignation to the King.

Constantinories, May 17th.—An inquiry has been held into the confossion of the four domestics of Tohetazin Palace, that they were concerned in the murder of Sultan Abdul Aziz, in 1876. The evidence adduced has led to the accusation of Midhat Pasha (who was Grand Vizier at the time of the Sultan's death), of complicity in the crime. An Imperial decree has accordingly been issued, deposing Midhat Pasha from the position he occupied as Governor of Smyrna, and ordering his immediate arrest.
